```
<!This here is a ry-remix (in a long line of remixes) of the generated nature poem Tokoro Gorge by Nigk Montfort, as well as the urban, modern, and playful Tokyo Garage by Scott Rettberg. Nick Montfort wrote the code, which was remixed at the word level by Scott</pre> Rettberg, and I hacked Rettberg's words to make the poem about something else, basically so I could learn something about electronic literature while experiencing it. Remixed May 15, 2012 by Chuck Rybak.>
                                                      "...the goal of [electronic <style type="text/css"> literature] remains < FCPATA 1 */
 body {
 background: #FFFFFF;
                                                      consistent: to manipulate
 color:black;
 margin: /0 24pt 0 24pt;
                                                      language, to transform the font-family: Garamond, Georgia, serif; font-size: 15pt;
                                                      linguistic into the literary by height: 16pt;
                                                      means of computation...
 color: #383838;
                                                      -- Heckman & O'Sullivan, Electronic Literature:
 text-decoration: none:
 /* ]\]> */
  /style> script language="JavaScript" type="text/javascript"> var n=0
 var paths=0
 var above='grunge rocker, shaman, grunge groupie, prostitute, EMO boy, bard, band widow, Mair band addict, bar star, patron, underage kid, flannel, grunge girl, grunge boy, Tacoma Cobain garage, Seattleite, not Vedder, lead guitarist, Nirvana model, Chuck Taylor, sound guy, Tacoma star, drummer, lead singer, dawn, bassist, bad beer neon sign, Pearl Jam, the sound checker, backup drummer, Soundgarden, flanneled mascot, the lyric machine, teen spirit, the wannabe, massively attended gig, talent scout, grunge worshipper, Cobain shrine, Nirvana, vedder freak, Olympia Caveler, joint, amplifier, bartender, hallucination, shrine, van, feedback, open mi hightmare, private party girl, basement, rock star, pop hook, shredder, melody, speed riffer, ex girl riend, garagequake, mic monger, crowd surfer, microphone, writer, dockworker, manager, backup singer grunge warrior, addict, video camera, groupie, front man, Portland kid, English major, leaching assistant, space weed, radio show host, grunge enthusiast, mixer, bouncer, horn player, misic scene blogger, scene writer, owner, atternative music station, pot smoker, whiskey
```

ENGLISH 249: CREATIVE WRITING SPECIAL PROJECTS

ELECTRONIC LITERATURE

SPRING 2019 FS/SNR 112 Daily 12:00 -12:50pm INST: JLOAN Projects Include:

-> remixing poetry generating computer programs

-> composing literature bots

-> composing interactive fiction

This course is novice-friendly.

No programming knowledge required.

email

jloan@pierce.ctc.edu for more info